Key Risks for International Schools

As the world becomes smaller and more interconnected, the number of international schools and kindergartens continues to grow but so do the risks associated with delivering quality education services.

Medical Coverage for Expat Teachers & Local Staff:

Are teachers adequately covered given that part of the appeal of working abroad is to explore the countries they are living and working, usually going “off the beaten track” where evacuation maybe necessary? Are your local staff well protected for their medical needs?

Board of Governors’ Risks:

How does the school handle allegations of miss-management by the Board and what insurance cover is there in place to defend claims of this nature?

Cyber Liability:

The education sector is rapidly embracing technology but what is it doing to protect itself from infiltration and hacking and how is it addressing ever changing data protection requirements in the country where it operates?

Child / Student Protection:

Is your school protected for these difficult situations? Who can provide support and help handle unfounded allegations? What is the cost to the schools reputation?

Student Safety:

Ensure student safety by avoiding high compensation payouts in case of accidental injury on the school premises, commuting to and from the school or activities organized by the school.

Kidnap and Ransom Risks:

How are you protecting children on school trips, away days, to and from school on school buses or even from around school premises?

Employment Practices Liability:

Is the school prepared to handle issues such as wrongful termination, sexual harassment and discrimination?

Natural Perils to School Property:

School assets can be affected by fire, flooding and other disasters leading to an interruption of services and even the need to rent temporary premises.

Sam

Bali International School

Lockton has provided an excellent level of service to the Singapore American School. They have been responsive to our requests for information and helpful with suggestions on how best to manage our insurance expenses.

They bring a breadth of experience in the industry which speaks for itself, and continue to invest in the business. Their proactivity has allowed us to refocus our efforts on other important aspects of our operations. I would not hesitate to recommend their services to other institutions looking for insurance brokerage services.
